The Sakura Estate by G. Douglas Wylie is now live online and will soon appear on international newsstands. As the story reveals, "A Japanese-inspired mid-century modern estate anchored by a 60-year-old cherry blossom tree." Nestled beside the Vancouver Golf Club in Coquitlam, this 1963 residence stands among the last of its kind - a serene union of architecture and landscape by Muirhead & Justice, pioneers of modern garden design in Canada. Crafted in cedar, glass, and granite, the home reflects the philosophies of wabi-sabi and harmony with nature. A sanctuary of timeless design, preserved and reimaged for the present day. Read the full story online and experience why this rare modernist estate is captivating audiences worldwide. (id:6289)
